BLAINE WILL LEAD.

That Seems to Be Certain, if Anything

THE ICEBERG FROM INDIANA

Has Chilled Whatever of Enthusiasm There Was.

AND IT IS ONLY A RAY FROM MAINE.

That Can Warm Up the Frozen Corpse of the Fraud-Wrecked Republican Party.

WASHINGTON, November 24.—[Special.]—James G. Blaine cannot be said to be a candidate for the presidential nomination in the sense of seeking the nomination, but he is willing to be roped in.

He will write no Florence letter declining the nomination in advance, and if the party insists on his running he will not say nay.

That is about his attitude, as his close personal friends from all parts of the country, who have been attending the meeting of the republican national committee, after consulting with him, understand it. The meeting here was distinctively a Blaine triumph.

The enthusiasm for the plumed knight pervaded every nook and corner of the Arlington hotel, where the national republican leaders were assembled. The cheering when his name was mentioned was unbounded. Mr. Blaine, who sat in the red house half a block from the meeting, could have heard the cheering which greeted his name, while the president, in the white house two blocks away, could hardly have heard the applause for himself if he had been straining his ears at the door of the Arlington.

A Visit to Blaine.

T. J. Blithen, the chairman of the Minneapolis delegation, announced after the convention had been located, that the selection meant Blaine's nomination.

"The northwest wants Blaine," said he, "and will have nobody else."

To Mr. Blaine, Mr. Blithen said today, when the Minneapolis delegation called on him: "Before the convention meets, Mr. Blaine, you will receive indubitable testimony as to the increase in the warmth of the feeling the people have for you."

The western men left for home vowing that they were going to whip up for Blaine. The general belief here is that any organized efforts will soon be inaugurated, backed by the national committee, three-fourths of which is for Blaine, to force the party to follow where the white plume waves.

Today the president narrowly avoided a most unpleasant rupture with the executive committee, which will manage the next presidential campaign. The committee expected an invitation to call at the white house, but as it was not forthcoming, Mr. Clarkson sent word to Mr. Harrison asking him to fix an hour at which the committee could call. Mr. Harrison replied that he would be pleased to receive the committee at 12 o'clock. Promptly at 12 o'clock the committee arrived. The custodian of the door leading to the president's consultation room, after announcing the visitors, brought back word that the president was momentarily engaged, but would be at leisure shortly. After the members of the committee had stood around for five minutes, toasting their shins at the fire, General Clarkson became impatient, and stepped into an adjoining room to ask Private Secretary Halford the cause of the delay. Lige immediately dodged into the president's room and reappeared with the information that Mr. Harrison was still engaged, but would receive the committee in a few minutes. General Clarkson went back and reported the result to his fellow members. The committee, with the exception of the office holders, grew very impatient, and the remarks they uttered about his excellency were weighted with sulphur and brimstone. After another wait of fifteen minutes, General Clarkson again sought Lige, to tell him that the committee had called by appointment; that they had waited until they were tired, and were now about to depart. This alarmed the docile Lige. He implored General Clarkson not to allow the committee to go, and rushed pell-mell into the president's room.

An Arctic Scene.

In a twinkling the doors were thrown open and the committee was ushered into the august presence of the chief, whom they found talking earnestly to Secretary Noble and Major McKinley. The president rose to receive the committee. He smiled, but there was no warmth in his smile. He chided the committee. He hardly knew a single member except General Clarkson, who introduced them one after another, as they approached, Indiana. The president shook hands with them in the same perfunctory manner, which he receives his visitors at the public receptions down stairs. The call was short. The committee left the white house in a bad humor, and wended its way to the state department, where Mr. Blaine received them with smiles and pleasant words. He knew each one by name, and had a pleasant word and a warm pressure of the hand for each. The difference between the committee's reception at the white house and state department was striking. It was like standing before a crackling log fire after being out in a blizzard. Mr. Blaine entertained his visitors with reminiscences, and when one or two of his most enthusiastic admirers spoke of his "boundless popularity," and ventured the hope that the party would have another chance to elect him, but said nothing. Blaine is a shy old fox. The presidential fever still inflames his blood.

Pineback's Howl.

In the afternoon the committee made statements of the condition of the party in each of their states. These were generally hopeful in tone and were received with enthusiasm. Ex-Governor Pineback, of Louisiana, however, varied the sameness of the addresses somewhat by indulging in a fierce attack upon the white republicans of the south, whom he held to be responsible for the lack of vitality of the party in that section, and whom he charged with suppressing the negro vote for fear of race issues. He held that their pusillanimous policy had resulted in the untold party losses, and maintained that a few vigorous contests and manifestations of their rightful power by southern democrats would have a wholesome political effect and redeem the southern states from the negro.

The Call for the Convention.

Later in the day the national republican committee issued the following call: To the Republican Electors of the United States.—In accordance with usage and instruction

CRISP, OF GEORGIA.

A Worthy Successor of the Late Howell Cobb.

HE WILL BE THE NEXT SPEAKER.

Despite the Wild Claims of the Mills Men.

BYNUM COUNTS ONLY FOR HIMSELF.

And the Democracy Will Crown Georgia's Statesman as the Man to Fight the People's Battles.

WASHINGTON, November 24.—[Special.]—The contest over the organization of the house has reached its interesting stage, where the runner-starters are busy launching their paper ships in the sea of gossip, and the various people in the fight are beginning to show their hands.

Judge Crisp, Mr. McMillin and Mr. Springer have selected headquarters at the Metropolitan, and Mr. Mills, who had taken the headquarters at Willard's, has been forced to open a sort of branch office at the Metropolitan, in order to keep in the swim. The Mills men are making a good deal of noise over the withdrawal of Mr. Bynum, but it is very doubtful whether in going to Mr. Mills Mr. Bynum will carry any Indiana congressmen with him.

Claims Made by Candidates.

Some definite claims are being made on behalf of candidates for the speakership, and various estimates as to their strength by outside parties, who are interested in the result, are being made. A large number of the members are still unpledged, though, for the most part, committed as to their preferences. The friends of Messrs. Hatch, Springer and McMillin have made no claims in detail as yet, and the estimate of Mr. Mills' strength varies from forty votes, counted by outsiders, to a general claim of "enough to elect him" made by his friends.

The new York LEGISLATURE

Will Be Organized in Both Branches by the Democrats.

New York, November 24.—[Special.]—The democrats will organize both branches of the legislature-elect, with a majority of 5 on joint ballot, not counting the vote of Senator Edwards, independent, who has promised to vote with the democrats on a number of important questions.

Senator Osborne, whom the republicans tried so hard to count out, has been seated, and today Judge Furman, of Albany, granted a mandamus to compel a recent vote of the Sullivan county, where Assemblyman Beakes, democrat, has been counted out. It was shown that the republican supervisors of Sullivan county went behind the returns and counted three illegal ballots for the republican candidate. The recount will seat Beakes.

The state board of canvassers, it is understood, will certainly declare Beakes, republican, ineligible, and seat the democratic candidate in Chenango county. This will make the senate stand 16 democrats, 15 republicans and 1 independent, Edwards, who will vote with the democrats.

The seating of Assemblyman Beakes, of Sullivan county, on the recount, will make the assembly stand democratic, 66; republicans, 62. Assemblyman Murphy, democrat of the third district, died today, but a special election will elect a democrat successor.

The democrats of this city are jubilant over the certainty that the party will control both branches of the legislature for the first time since 1883.

IT MEANS RECONCILIATION

Between the Disaffected Sections of Brazil. Minister Mendonca Pleaded.

WASHINGTON, November 24.—Senator Mendonca, Brazilian minister, today received a cablegram, dated yesterday, from the Brazilian minister of foreign affairs confirming the presidential dispatch announcing the resignation of President Fonseca, of Brazil, and the assumption of the office by Vice President Peixoto.

Minister Mendonca has heretofore been of the opinion that the dissatisfaction with President Fonseca's policy was only local in its character, and was confined to the province of Rio Grande do Sul, but when the peaceful district of Rio de Janeiro revolted, it showed, he says, that this dissatisfaction was becoming national. The only course, therefore, left to the president was to resign, and in doing this he acted very patriotically.

The minister received the news with pleasure, for he thinks it means the reconciliation of all dissatisfied parties and the complete restoration of harmony throughout the country. It was especially gratifying to him to know that everything which had been accomplished with regard to the shedding of blood. The revolution in Rio Grande do Sul, the minister thinks, will subside as soon as the people hear of Fonseca's resignation. The new president, Mendonca believes, will convene the congress dissolved by the late president.

ATTACKED THE ENGINEERS.

Riotous Strikers in France Repulsed by the Military.

PARIS, November 24.—A dispatch from Lens, one of the centers of the coal miners' strike in the department of Pas-de-Calais, says a body of military engineers was sent to the factory to break the machinery in a factory at that place. The factory had been able to secure a supply of coal which rendered it independent of the miners. The engineers, and this condition of affairs enraged the strikers, whose evident desire is to bring all industries of the place to a standstill.

The military authorities had an idea that the strikers would make an attempt to compel the factory to shut down, and they, therefore, ordered the detail of a small body of troops to protect the property and employ the strikers. The strikers were very determined in their onslaught on the engineers, despite the presence of soldiers. Finally the troops took a hand in the matter and after a sharp fight drove the strikers away. Many of the leaders of the attack were placed under arrest.

Yellow Fever at Santos.

New York, November 24.—[Special.]—The steamer Belmar is discharging a cargo of coffee at Martin's wharf, Brooklyn. She left Santos October 23rd. Captain Moppett said:

"When we left Santos the yellow fever there had been raging for some time. The fever was in the hospital were full, so there was no room for patients. During the last month the captains of five Norwegian and one Swedish ship died of yellow fever. That was during the last month. Sailing vessels usually stop at three or four of the ports in the bay. Probably half the cases were not reported."

The Would-Be Duellists Arrested.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., November 24.—[Special.]—Another chapter in the Sevier-Harrison editorial "duellists," opened today by the arrest of the principals and their being held before the circuit court, in $1,000 for Harrison and $500 for Sevier, and the grand jury, of this city, has been quietly investigating the case, brought an indictment against the two this morning, and their arrest soon followed.

For Selling Mortgaged Property.

ANNISTON, Ala., November 24.—[Special.]—John Martin was arrested near Anniston, this morning, on the charge of selling mortgaged property. The offense was committed in Carroll county, Georgia, about a month ago. Sheriff Hewitt, of Carroll county, and Police Commissioner of this city, Martin paying off the debts, together with all the costs.

CANNOT MOVE HER.

All London Drawn to the Southern Wonder, Annie Abbott.

VICTORIOUS IN ALL SORTS OF TESTS.

A Smart Reporter, Who Thought He Knew the Trick.

TRIES TO LIFT ANNA AND FAILS.

Charley Mitchell, the Fugitive, After Several Unsuccessful Efforts, Retires from the Stage—Attracting Crowds.

LONDON, November 24.—[Special.]—Oddly enough the sensation of the week comes from a music hall. It is furnished by Miss Annie Abbott, the "Georgia Magnet," who is exhibiting at the Alhambra, and every day the excitement increases over her performance, which is not only being discussed in the ordinary critical way by the papers, but they go so far as to write legends on her, while The Times has been publishing some correspondence on her powers. The evening papers, too, have fallen in line and devote columns to what must truthfully be declared to be one of the most remarkable exhibitions we have ever had here.

The Alhambra itself is besieged for an hour before the doors are opened by an eager crowd which is anxious to secure places in those parts of the house which cannot be reserved before hand, and the result is that Leicester square, about 7 o'clock, hold a surging, seething mob, good natured, it is true, as Londoners on pleasure bent invariably is, but eager to take advantage of every possible opportunity that may occur to get into the house before everybody else. The reserved portions of the house are closely booked a week ahead of time, a waiting list of names in London music halls, and during Miss Abbott's performance the house becomes so crowded that its audience is only limited by the impossibility to admit more people without infringing the licensing act.

The Star has been publishing what professes to be an exposure of the way she does her "tricks," and last night issued a challenge to Miss Abbott, which was accepted "with promptitude and despatch." Accordingly a reporter from that paper went on the stage and was utterly defeated, while the audience, like audience generally, which delight in seeing the discomfiture of a would-be too smart individual, simply roared their hearts out.

CANNOT LEAVE THE BABY.

Answer of Ex-President Cleveland to Hon. Patrick Walsh.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—President Walsh, of the exposition, on Monday sent the following telegram inviting ex-President Cleveland to attend the exposition:

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 24.—Hon. Grover Cleveland, New York: The Augusta exposition will visit this city before its close. The exposition is not in the least a commercial affair. It is national by reason of the fact that twenty-four states contribute to make it the best exposition ever held in the south. In fact, a progress for the last ten years. Your presence would give an impetus to the industrial south, and serve to unify the political south. We will send a delegation and a table car, and we will give you a grand ovation from Virginia to Georgia. You can come this week. You can be back in New York on the night of the third day after starting from home if you so desire. All arrangements will be made for you if you will honor us with a visit. In return for the Georgia and South Carolina in vast numbers will greet your coming. Please wire reply. PATRICK WALSH.

Tonight the following program was received: New York, November 24.—Hon. Patrick Walsh, President, Augusta, Ga.: I am glad to hear that you will attend your exposition and believe that I am prevented from doing so by reasons which appear to me as a matter of course.

DANCING THE KIRNESS.

Five Thousand Persons Attend the Exhibition in Augusta.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—Five thousand people are attending the kirmess at the exposition tonight. It was a brilliant sight, and such an aggregation of lovely and beautiful young ladies wearing gorgeous costumes was never seen before. The kirmess will be danced for the last time Thursday night.

Farmers are coming in tonight by carloads to attend all-night dance tomorrow and hear President Leonidas Livingston, of the Georgia alliance, make his speech. Carolina day Monday will be the red-letter day of the exposition.

THERE IS A LITTLE BULGE.

Cotton Closed at an Advance of Seven to Nine Points.

New York, November 24.—The Sun thus reports: Futures opened buoyant and turned easier and quiet, but recovered and closed firm at seven to nine points advance. The Liverpool market was again a disappointment to our bears, and again they came in as buyers to cover contracts. Still, the truth of the assertion that the short interest is small, was again proved by the fact that in the absence of any other demand the market soon relaxed to its normal level and became weak. In the last hour, however, the market showed a decided buoyancy, and the close was at the best figures of the day. It was said that a leading bear who had recently stood short, began to cover his position, and it was also seen that receipts at some of the interior towns are small. A few of the late bears openly turned bulls, but it was not certain whether they will remain long on the market. It was also seen that the "bulge" is at an end. There is a very large "long" interest to be liquidated, and when this will be accomplished is not certain. Spot cotton was firmer, but not notably dearer.

Held for Murder.

ANNISTON, Ala., November 24.—[Special.]—Sam Ray has been denied bail, and remained to jail to await an investigation by the grand jury of Calhoun county at Jacksonville, on a charge of murder in the first degree. About two weeks ago Ray shot young man Harris, a law student, near Piedmont, and they became involved in a row over one of the women, which resulted in Ray shooting Harris, from the effect of which he died shortly afterwards. Ray was given a preliminary hearing before Judge Cook, at Jacksonville, who committed him without bail.

Blown Up with Dynamite.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 24.—A serious attempt was made last night to blow up a tenement house in the eastern part of this city, occupied by a number of Italians. The explosive, believed to have been dynamite, was placed just inside the rear door, and the door and hall were almost completely wrecked. A number of inmates of the house were stunned, but not badly hurt. No clue.

Injured by the Storm.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 24.—A special from Bellefonte says a church at Heck, ten miles from this place, was blown down on a number of children, who had sought refuge from the storm. John Barner and Elias Dink were fatally injured, and several severely hurt. A dispatch from this city, dated Sunday, says that the property there to the extent of $40,000. Among the buildings destroyed is a Cumberland Presbyterian church.

The Gale Is Over.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., November 24.—The gale is over and the weather is growing cold. Communication by telegraph was restored in all directions this afternoon and business is once more resuming its normal condition. The damage by the storm in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

Death of Revenue Collector Allen.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., November 24.—[Special.]—United States Internal Revenue Collector Allen, of this city, died suddenly this morning at 2 o'clock. His remains will be taken to Greenville, his old home, for burial tomorrow. He was in his office as usual yesterday.

Indiana's New Governor.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., November 24.—Lieutenant Governor Ira J. Chase took the oath of office as successor to the late Governor Hovey as chief executive of Indiana.

TELEGRAPH BRIEVITIES.

A committee of the Federation of Labor had an interview with President Harrison yesterday.

Collector Allen, of the second revenue district of Tennessee, is dead.

The comptroller of currency has authorized the manufacturers' National Bank of Harrisburg, Pa., to begin business with a capital of $50,000.

E. R. Meredith, of Prince William, was nominated for congress by the district democratic convention at Alexandria, Va.

Owners of tin plate mills in Wales have decided to close their mills for a fortnight in December and a fortnight in January.

South American securities are strong on the London market. Brazilians advanced 7 per cent, but afterward receded 2 per cent.

The archbishop of Aix, France, charged with writing an insulting letter to the minister of public worship, has been found guilty and fined 5,000 francs.

The manager of Carmichael, the Spanish dancer, acknowledges that she had been married in New York last August to Senor Pablo Eschepara, leader of the Spanish Students' band.

THE DRIPPING BLADE

Red with the Blood of Mr. R. R. Phillips.

SHOCKING MURDER IN MACON COUNTY.

A Quarrel Over Some Burning Fences Leads to a Most Frightful Tragedy.

OLETHORPE, Ga., November 24.—[Special.] One of the foullest murders occurring in this county took place near here yesterday morning.

Mr. R. R. Phillips, one of the most influential planters of Macon county, was stabbed to the death by a disreputable character named Killbrev.

Nothing has stirred up the citizens of this neighborhood so much as the killing, and if the murderer could be captured now he might be summarily dealt with.

Mr. Phillips was burning off a piece of land to prepare a peach grove and the fire got into the wood and burned a panel of the fence between him and Mr. Edmund Killbrev.

Some words passed between the men about the burning, when Cullen, the son, attacked Mr. Phillips and stabbed him three times with a dirk. Phillips lived only about thirty minutes after being cut.

Murder in the First Degree.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. At the inquest two witnesses testified. They were colored men living on Phillips's place.

Mose Davis was first sworn. He said that Phillips and old man Killbrev had some words about the fire, when Phillips told Killbrev that he should not set a cent by it. That he would replace the fence Monday morning, and the witness was told to commence repairing it. Killbrev told Phillips that he had been talking too big about it, when Phillips turned and replied that he would say what he pleased on his own land. Cullen, the miller son, who had been sitting behind Phillips, jumped up when he said this, and walked toward Phillips with his hands in his pockets, remarking, "No, by G—, you won't say what you please here this morning."

Phillips turned and asked if he was taking it up. Cullen replied, "Yes, by G—," and struck Phillips in the face. Phillips pushed him away, but Killbrev ran in again and caught him around the waist under the arms and cut him until his father pulled him away. The other witness was a negro named Charles Lockhart, who lived, until a short time ago, with Killbrev. He swore substantially the same thing that the first witness did. He said that Phillips did not appear to be mad, and nobody expected a difficulty. When Cullen Killbrev ran towards him, nobody thought he meant to kill Phillips. Phillips was unarmed, and did not attempt to defend himself further than to push Killbrev off when he struck him in the face.

A Thirteen-Inch Blade.

One of the witnesses saw the knife, and he swore that it was twelve or thirteen inches long. He testified that he saw the six-inch blade bury itself in Phillips's back at every thrust. At the examination of the body, three wounds were found, any one of which would have produced death. All of them went to the hollow. Two were stars and the other was a long slash across the back between the shoulder blades. Phillips walked to the house, a distance of 100 yards, and died at the mouth before he got there. He went in his room and pulled off his coat and laid down. He told his wife to sit down by him and hold his hand until he died. Phillips was of robust frame, and weighed over two hundred pounds. He was well known in north Georgia, where he was raised. He was at one time mayor of Butler, and was talked of as a successor to Henry R. Harris in the fourth congressional district. He has not lived in Macon county more than five years, but no citizen in the county had more friends. The marriage of the oldest daughter of R. R. Phillips, to Butler, whom he leaves here with six little children. He will be buried in Butler today.

Killbrev's Character.

Killbrev bears a bad reputation. He is regarded as a rascal, and he has no friends. He is said to be guilty of cheating his laborers, and on one occasion, some years ago, he cut a man in a most cowardly manner. He is a married man, and has four or five in the family. Several more and several detectives have been shadowing the Killbrev house ever since the murder, and if the murderer is in the neighborhood he will be captured.

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES.

Judge Nisbet Elected President of the School Board.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—The board of trustees of the Macon free schools met this afternoon, and elected John S. Baxter to the vacancy on the board caused by the death of John G. Graham. Judge James T. Nisbet was chosen chairman to succeed Graham.

The trustees of the Wesleyan Female college met this afternoon and decided to let Mulberry street Methodist church congregation have a site of 100x140 feet of the college property, corner of College street and Washington avenue, on which to erect a handsome new church. The present property of the church, including the parsonage on Mulberry street, will be sold for cash, like for fifty thousand dollars. The new church will cost about one hundred thousand dollars.

The board of trustees of Macon's free schools may sell the White school property on Mulberry street, and build a handsome school on part of the property now owned by the Mulberry street Methodist church, corner of Mulberry and First streets.

Macon Gospel.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—In the United States court today the case against William Powell for perjury is being tried.

Judge L. P. Daniel, of Griffin, will be one of the speakers at the Odd Fellows' banquet in Macon on December 9th.

The new order, Knights of Damon, is growing rapidly in Macon. It is thought there will be a membership of 1,000 in Macon.

The friends of Mr. Sam Everett sympathize with him in the death of his mother at Winston, N. C.

Dr. J. C. Nottingham, a popular druggist of Savannah, is in the city.

Hon. James A. McKelzie, vice president of the board of control of the world's fair, will meet with the editors' convention at Macon.

Five thousand dollars have been subscribed to the fund to build the new electric line to Houston road.

Will Discontinue Passenger Trains.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—After tomorrow regular passenger trains on the Macon and Birmingham road will be discontinued between Macon and LaGrange, and people along this road will have to content themselves with a freight accommodation train one way a day. Regular passenger trains are said not to go through the new and sparsely settled country. The Macon and Birmingham has no mail contract to help sustain the passenger trains.

Telephone Visitors.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—C. E. McCluer, superintendent of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, of Richmond, R. B. Hood, manager of the Richmond telephone exchange, and Professor Walton are in Macon today to examine the new multiple switchboard just put up in this city. The old board had accommodations for only 600 wires and four operators. The new board can accommodate 1,800 wires and ten operators. There are eight operators in the Macon exchange.

DEEP WATER FOR SAVANNAH.

Captain Puse Hints at What It Would Mean for the Port.

SAVANNAH, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—At the reception of Captain D. G. Puse, at the board of trade this evening, Captain Puse made a statement which excited a great deal of comment, and bids fair to be the most talked-of event of the city.

"In the west," said the captain, "I learned from men of high position that big men out there had but a short time ago secured an option on the great navigable Central railroad of this port, and intended making shipments of grain to Europe through Savannah. Unfortunately, however, when they investigated they came to the conclusion that the water here was not deep enough for the vessels they intended employing in the grain trade, and so they gave up the option and temporarily, at least, abandoned the idea. What I want to point out, though, is that what their attention was directed sufficiently to this port to get this option from the Central, and to show you the strong probability that, with deep water once obtained, the shipment of great quantities of grain through this port will be a reality."

This was received with many evidences of satisfaction. It will serve to give even more impetus to the movement for twenty-eight feet of water in the river. The reception was a brilliant affair, and was attended by most of the leading business men of the city. Captain Puse was received with much applause and received the result of his remarks. The resolutions adopted by the commercial bodies out there will show to the congressmen and senators of those states that the people who plant their cottons desire the south to be the representative of the people of Georgia in their work for deep water at Savannah.

INFLUENCED BY EASTERN INTERESTS.

The National Grange Opposes Savannah's Deep Water Scheme.

SPRINGFIELD, O., November 24.—[Special.]—The national grange has been in session here for nearly a week, and with the idea of securing from congress an endorsement of Savannah's effort to secure an appropriation from congress for deep water, I came here the first of the week and personally appealed to the members and circulated the pamphlets containing Savannah's appeal. The result was a heavy response from the western delegates, but was told that I would have to fight the east. Unfortunately for us, Georgia delegates, with a heavy response from the western delegates, but was told that I would have to fight the east. Unfortunately for us, Georgia delegates, with a heavy response from the western delegates, but was told that I would have to fight the east.

The alliance, having in the south and west largely absorbed the grange, has left that organization largely in the control of the eastern and middle states.

I have had some opportunity for the past ten days of examining the financial situation in this state, especially in the manufacturing districts, and I judge that the manufacturing industry is standing good crops and fair prices, has suffered from the financial depression of the past year. The manufacturers are struggling with small forces, and some of them closed up entirely. Now that the election is over, there is a feeling of relief. ## THE TRAIN ROBBER.

Their Trial to Take Place in Forsyth Today.

FORSYTH, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—The three train robbers, Horton, Braswell and Thornton, were brought here for trial this morning.

On account of the sickness of the wife of Judge Hines, who is leading attorney for the defendants, the trial was postponed until tomorrow, at 10 o'clock. The prisoners all expect to plead guilty and ask the clemency of the court.

Horton is here, very sick, but the general impression is that he is shamming, trying to gain the sympathy of the court, as Deputy Sheriff J. H. King caught him swallowing tobacco today.

Horton's uncle is here with a lot of testimonials from prominent citizens of Washington county as to Horton's good character while in that county. The testimonials will be presented to the judge tomorrow.

IN COLD BLOOD.

One Jealous Lover Meets and Kills Another.

GRANTVILLE, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—Four miles east of here Ed Jenkins shot and killed Wilkes James cold blood.

About ten days ago the latter had a quarrel over a girl Jenkins was loving, telling him then that he expected to kill him, only waiting an opportune time. They happened to meet the next time in quite a secluded place, Jenkins raising his gun and firing the entire discharge taking effect in the neck. The murderer at once gave himself up to the officers, and was landed in jail.

A JUST SENTENCE.

The Only Trouble Is There Should Be a Good Many More of Them.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—Today in the United States court, Powell, colored, was found guilty of perjury and sentenced to five years imprisonment or the hard labor of the penitentiary.

Municipal Politics in Brunswick.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—The third contest for mayor and aldermen, Thomas Lamb heading two, is out. Lamb's friends are willing to bet five to one on his election. Stewart Johnson, the opposing candidate, is quoted as saying he would contest Lamb's election, if carried, on the grounds of illegality, Lamb not living in the city two years.

The Odd Fellows' Anniversary.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—United Brothers lodge, No. 5, of Macon Odd Fellows, will celebrate its forty-eighth anniversary the night of December 2nd. Extensive preparations are now being made for a grand banquet on that occasion. Speeches will be made by distinguished Odd Fellows from all parts of the state.

Mashed Between the Cars.

AUGUSTA, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—A bad accident occurred at the union depot tonight. Mr. J. H. Booknight, a well-to-do farmer of Johnston, S. C., boarded a Richmond and Danville train with his wife to return home after spending today at the exposition. As all the cars were filled, Mr. Booknight stood on the platform, and when the train started off his right foot got caught between the platforms of two cars and was terribly mangled. He was removed to the Arlington hotel, where his foot was amputated by Drs. Wright and Ford.

SLAVER AT THE DANCE.

A Bloody Midnight Tragedy in Jasper County.

DEATH OF AN HONORED CITIZEN.

Some of the Old Men of Jasper County Who Have Led Good and Successful Lives.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—At a negro frolic at Aaron Best's, colored, last night there his plain, elderly, colored man committed by the killing of Wilson Walker by Joe Thomas. The circumstances, from the evidence produced at the inquest, are these:

Walker was dancing with a woman, who incensed Thomas. Thomas sent his friend, Tom Marks, into the house to bring Walker out. Walker replied that he would go as soon as the set was over, which he did, Marks taking him by the arm, and walked out about twenty steps from the house, to where Joe Thomas stood waiting.

The Shot Fired.

On Walker and Marks coming up, arm in arm, Thomas fired his pistol at Walker, the ball striking near the heart. Walker turned and ran in the house and remarked he was shot, and turned to get on a bed and fell dead. Thomas was arrested, but made his escape.

A Sudden Death.

Uncle Burton Kelly, one of our oldest citizens, on yesterday, after preparing to go to Hope-Well Baptist church, of which he had been an influential and prominent member for the last fifty years, walked to his barn to attend to some business. Staying longer than usual, some of the family went to the barn and found him in a dying condition. They tried to revive him, but he partially recovered, but never spoke, and about 5 o'clock p. m. he died. Thus passed away one of a trio of old and prominent Christian gentlemen. Uncle Burton was eighty-eight years old. In the same neighborhood and belonging to the same church, are Uncle Sam Blackwell, eighty-nine, and Uncle W. W. Preston, ninety years old.

Uncle Sam Blackwell is in good health, and loves a fox chase as well as ever. Uncle Preston is now lying very ill—not expected to live. All these old gentlemen are of the old school and have many friends and honored citizens. These descendants are our most honored citizens. Uncle Blackwell and Preston have often represented our county in the state legislature and other county offices, while Uncle Kelly never aspired to any office. He lived quietly at home on his plantation, and made a success of farming. It is told by one of his nearest neighbors that he (Kelly) had not seen the back end of his barn in fifty years and had fiddled fifty years old. He was buried today at his home in the family burial ground.

The Cotton Crop.

The cotton crops are panning out short—about three-fourths of a crop. That, with the extremely low price, is making farmers blue. Not one in fifty will pay out. They are buying absolutely nothing, but are honestly turning over the last pound of cotton to the merchants. They have one consolation, and that is good corn crops, and are killing some hogs. A great many will have enough meat to go on. Three times as much wheat is being sown as last year. What is become of the negro tenant and day laborer, cannot be surmised. Our merchants are extremely blue. While there are a great many farmers who waived their tenant's rent, not to give them started they are getting no rent. This system of farming is obliged to go under.

MAKE THEM HAPPY, TOO.

Mrs. Brittain Proposes to Give the Street Waits a Thanksgiving Dinner.

Mrs. Brittain continues to do good work for Atlanta's poor and afflicted.

Day after day she visits worthy families in distress and administers to their wants. In addition to this work she pays close attention to her boys' club, and every meeting its membership increases. She has a large number of little boys she has induced to be members of the club and receive instruction that will make them aspire to higher and better lives. The Christian influence of this work is being felt in the neighborhood.

What she wants is contribution of fruit and nuts from fruit dealers and others who will open their hearts and help to make these bright but soiled-faced little band of unfortunate boys happy on the day of national Thanksgiving. She has a list of names of those who have contributed to the station house, and if those desiring to contribute to the station house, will send a telephone message to 721, she will send out after them.

The newsboys are all invited, and each member of the club will be expected to bring one friend with him, to be taken from the friendless street waifs.

FROM OUR NOTEBOOKS.

Georgia Patents.—The following is a complete list of patents granted to residents of Georgia the week just past, and is especially reported for THE CONSTITUTION by A. A. Wood & Son, solicitors of American and foreign patents, Atlanta: Homer V. Hardwick, Sr., Conyers, Ga., trussed structure; Samuel G. Crockett, Savannah, Ga., rotary steam engine; Wilbur H. Close, Atlanta, Ga., railway gate; J. M. Brooks, administratrix, Rhodum M. Brooks, deceased, and W. H. Brooks, Molena, Ga., wheeled scoop.

This issue comprises thirty-seven of which are to citizens of foreign countries.

The Bull Show.—The premium list for the bull show to be given by the Atlanta Horticultural Society is now in the hands of the printer. Great interest is being taken in it. Cows will be offered as special prizes. Dahl says he will exhibit over five hundred bulls.

Douglasville Court.—Judge Richard H. Clark is holding court at Douglasville. This will be the last time he will preside at the Douglasville court as he has been added to the Tallapoosa circuit. A jury docket is to be disposed of at this term of court.

Is Being Enforced.—The order recently issued by Chief Connolly to arrest and prosecute cab drivers for fast driving is being rigidly enforced. The books show cases almost daily where violators of this ordinance are prosecuted and fined. In cases where a policeman is not present Chief Connolly will thank citizens who will take the numbers of the cab drivers violating this ordinance and report it to police headquarters.

Choked While Eating.—The eleven-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Turner was almost fatally choked while eating soup yesterday afternoon. Dr. Kennan was sent for and he relieved the sufferings of the little one. Last night the child was resting all right.

A Splendid Entertainment.—The young ladies of the Girls' High school will give an entertainment on Friday evening for the benefit of the Grady hospital and Maternity hospital. The affair gives promise of being a complete artistic and financial success.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

Georgia Republicans Talk of the Convention Going to Minneapolis.

The republican party is well nigh an unknown quantity in Georgia politics.

Taken as a whole it has no more idea for whom it will vote for president, than the average politician has as to who will be nominated at Minneapolis next June.

A search for and a talk with the leaders demonstrated this fact very forcibly yesterday. The fact that the national republican executive committee had decided in conclave, during the puffs of the fragrant Havanas and the nips at the sparkling champagne, that the next republican nominating convention should go to Minneapolis, created general comment.

Judge Will Haight, who bore the standard of his party in the last congressional race in this district, speaking of the action of the executive committee, said:

"There is no political significance about it, so far as I know. The fact is, I am not up on such things just now. I suppose Minneapolis was selected for its central location, and as Chicago was chosen before."

"Who will the republican party of Georgia support for president?" the judge was asked.

"Well, really the republican party is so small in Georgia," said he, "that I have thought very little of it. The nomination lies between Harrison and Blaine with the odds in favor of Blaine. I can only answer for Georgia from what I hear from republican individuals. I belong to no committee, and have no way of knowing more than the ordinary citizen."

General James E. Lewis, Atlanta's postmaster, could see no political significance in the convention going to Minneapolis.

"I don't believe it means anything," said he. "I believe that the influence back of it was, in the main, for the good of Minneapolis, and not for any political reason. The fact of the convention going to that city might have, I do not think, the fact of the convention going to Minneapolis means any preference for any one candidate."

C. C. Wimble, the colored collector of customs for the port of Atlanta, had not thought about the matter at all and hadn't the least idea who the Georgia republicans wanted for president.

PONDER IS COMING.

He Was Arrested by Patrolman Wilson in Knoxville.

Walter Ponder, who is wanted in Atlanta for assaulting Zetta Clark, was captured by Policeman B. T. Wilson yesterday morning in Knoxville, Tenn.

He will arrive in custody of Mr. Wilson on the 6 o'clock Western and Atlantic train this morning.

As was stated in yesterday's CONSTITUTION Ponder has been located several days, and Sunday Patrolman B. T. Wilson started after him. The following telegram to Captain Manley, filed in Knoxville at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, was received about 5 o'clock.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., November 24.—Captain Manley, Police Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga.: Have been carrying on a hunt for Walter Ponder. Will be in next train.

One of the afternoon papers stated yesterday that Ponder's capture was engineered by Sheriff Morrow. That the above telegram was sent to Captain Morrow. As appeared on the face of the message, it was addressed to Captain Manley, at police headquarters.

Chief Connolly turned the entire case over to Captain Morrow and Captain Manley, and these officers engineered the whole thing, with the assistance of Policeman Wilson, who tracked down and finally captured his man.

Captain Manley requests the publication of the following card in relation to the matter: ATLANTA, November 24.—After the reward had been offered for Walter Ponder, B. T. Wilson started after him. Knowing all the time he was out of the city, Wilson told me he believed if I would have him to go to Cartersville he could locate Ponder. I did so and he went to Cartersville and made arrangements with a friend to locate Ponder. He (Wilson) heard while at Cartersville that Ponder had gone to Knoxville, Tenn., and on November 23d Wilson's friend telegraphed him that he had his man located. I immediately sent Wilson to see his friend, and last night I received a message from Wilson that his man was in Knoxville, Tenn., and that he was coming here today. I received him within ten minutes.

CAPTAIN W. P. MANLEY.

A WHEELBARROW RIDE

And a Further Journey of 3,000 Miles to Be Decided in '92.

Several years ago, when Harrison was elected president, Mr. Pratt fulfilled an election bet by riding Mr. J. B. Pratt's wheelbarrow from his store on Broad street, the entire length of Alabama.

These gentlemen are at it again.

They have just concluded a novel and interesting election bet. Pratt now lives in Seattle, Wash., but if the next president is a democrat, he is to come to Atlanta at Mr. Scarratt's expense, and be ridden about town by him in a good-sized wheelbarrow.

If a republican should happen to be successful, Mr. Scarratt is to go to Seattle on a ticket furnished by Mr. Pratt, and enjoy himself in that far off city the same non-communistic vehicle.

Atlanta wants the fun for two reasons.

UNITED STATES WEATHER MAP FOR TODAY.

The weather symbols on the map are as follows:

CLEAR, FAIR, CLOUDY, RAIN, SNOW.

Dotted lines, isothermal, pass through points of equal temperature. Unbroken lines, or isobars, pass through points of equal air pressure. The arrows fly with the wind. The figures at the end of the isotherms show the temperature all along that line. The isobars, or lines of equal pressure, round a high cold wave or a low warm wave, or run round a knoll, or descend with the grade of the atmospheric valley. When you see the figures 30.01 at the end of a line it means that at all places where the line runs the air is high enough to balance in weight 30.01 inches of mercury. The same for 30.2, 30.3, etc. The cold comes with the high atmosphere, and rain usually with a low.

The storm that has been central over the lower lake region for the last two days has passed off the St. Lawrence valley. The weather is nearly clear throughout the country, with the exception of the upper lake region, where light snows are reported. The temperature in the northwest is very low, and needs to be as far south as the northern part of Missouri. The change in temperature at Atlanta during the twenty-four hours ending at 8 p. m. yesterday was very slight, the thermometer registering 45 degrees at 8 o'clock last evening. The skies will remain nearly clear during today and tomorrow, with a little warmer weather. The winds will be light northerly today, becoming variable tomorrow.

SOLOMON DID IT.

The $30,000 Paid for King Solomon Causes the Exposition Shortage.

A CLEAR STATEMENT OF THE LOSS

By Secretary Charles Arnold, in Which He Explains How the Grounds and Buildings Have Been Improved.

The Piedmont Exposition Company lost, as near as can be estimated now, about twenty-two hundred dollars.

This is official, and all other figures given out to the contrary are unauthorized and are erroneous.

The King Solomon show is the straw that broke the camel's back.

All sorts of stories have been printed on the exposition's losses and gains, but all figures that have been given out are unauthorized and unreliable.

Mr. Charles Arnold, secretary of the exposition company, who has charge of all the books, talked freely about the exposition yesterday.

"I cannot make a final statement," said he, "until the returns from all the railroads are in. The railroads will make their reports in about a month, and then I can give the exact figures. As far as I can make an estimate from the returns that are in I am satisfied that the exposition will run short of about two hundred dollars."

"The statement that we have lost $27,000," continued Mr. Arnold, "on the expositions of 1890 and of 1891 is entirely wrong. We did not lose money last year, as has been stated, but on the contrary we made $4,000, and if we have lost a couple of thousand dollars this year, it is because we have given a better show this year than heretofore and have spent $30,000 in attractions and music, where we have spent only $12,000 in former years."

"There is a distinction to be made between the Piedmont Exposition Company and the Piedmont exposition. Money has to be spent every year to a large extent to increase the value of the grounds and buildings, and to keep the grounds in proper condition. It cannot be expected of the exposition itself to make money every year. The management spent last year $15,000 for improvements for real estate, for new engines, for new machinery, for new steam, for machinery, and for bringing waterworks to the grounds."

"While this money has not been earned by the exposition company, an amount of $10,000 has been carried over. It is absurd to consider this total loss to the company. We have spent in three years about twenty thousand dollars for improvements of the grounds and facilities, and the exposition property is now worth three times as much as the price paid for it. It can be truly said that including buildings and machinery the property owned by the exposition company is worth $500,000."

"We have spent about five thousand dollars this year for the improvement of the property, and have increased the value of the property to at least six times its original value. The general management of the company has every reason to be proud of the result. Of course, money is needed to pay for all this permanent improvement, which we have as a floating debt carried from last year and added to this year. The expenses in the last three years have been managed in the most economical way, and if the expense for the big show hadn't been so large the results would have been entirely different, and I think that an actual loss of $2,200 is nothing considering the great benefits received by the visitors to the exposition, who have spent more money than ever before at an exposition."

"The exposition is seeking to raise any money it is for permanent improvements, and not to cover the loss."

Mr. Arnold was asked about the figures given out by Mr. Sandy Cohen, showing that the exposition company had made money.

"No figures," he replied, "have ever been given out from headquarters, either by President Wylie or myself, to show that profits had been made. Whoever made a statement to the effect that the exposition had made money was unauthorized to do so, or took a very vague view of facts which did not exist. On the contrary, we have always stated that we would do well to come out with expense paid, and would probably fall $2,000 short. President Wylie has managed the affairs in a most excellent way, and no one could have done better than he has done."

"What do you attribute the loss?" Mr. Arnold was asked.

"The enormous expense for the attractions," he replied. "If the last week had been as good as the first two weeks there would have been no shortage. The receipts for the last week, alliance week, were $8,000 behind the receipts of the first two weeks."

THANKSGIVING DAY.

Comes Tomorrow, and Will Be Appropriately Observed.

PUBLIC OFFICES AND BANKS WILL CLOSE.

And Everybody Will Enjoy an Old-Time Thanksgiving Dinner-Servant at the Various Churches.

Thanksgiving again. Tomorrow is the day, and every one is looking forward to it.

There need be no invitation to enjoy it. There are few who have not made preparations for it.

Nearly everybody who is a non-resident of Atlanta will spend the day at home, and there will be a big exodus of these pleasure-seekers.

Many will spend the morning in church, and enjoy the day quietly.

Others will have a genuine frolic, and leave nothing unturned to show that they have grasped the opportunity to express their thanks in their own original, enthusiastic way.

An Interesting Collection.

The proclamation of Governor Norther last week is one among many at the capital.

There he has those of every state in the country, and they are a varied lot indeed. No one is alike.

Some are concisely and to the point; others go into numerous details of the history of the One to whom we are to be grateful.

They form a collection as unlike another as the observances in the different states. It is interesting to read them and to see the various ways in which executives make an announcement.

But they all have the same significance, and that is the important thing.

They Will Close.

The various public buildings of Atlanta will observe a general holiday.

The Capitol, the city and county offices, the custom house and the banks will remain closed the entire day, and the officials and their clerks will be off spending the day.

The railroad offices will close about noon. At the postoffice there will be Sunday hours, with the exception of a morning delivery. Business will be transacted from 8:30 to 10 o'clock a.m.

Several business houses will observe either a whole or half-holiday, the wholesale merchants particularly expecting to devote the day entirely to the purpose for which it has been set aside.

The city will no doubt present an unusually quiet appearance.

At the Churches.

The churches will spend the morning in praise, prayer and thanksgiving.

The regular services will be held, with appropriate additions and a sermon befitting the occasion.

At the Church of the Redeemer the children will take a prominent part in the exercises. Special musical programs have been prepared, and the church will be prettily decorated.

At the Episcopal churches there will be the usual Thanksgiving services. It will consist of a sermon and afterward a celebration of the Holy Communion. St. Luke's and St. Philip's will be decorated with fruits and flowers, and the choir augmented by several voices.

The Methodists will also spend the morning in giving thanks to the Creator and Bestower of all things.

One of the most beautiful features of these services will be the contributions for the poor.

At the churches donations of clothing, provisions or money will be received, and these will be distributed promptly and worthily upon the needy or those in want.

This custom will be carefully carried out and there will be many causes for additional thanksgiving furnished in this way.

At night the Young Men's Christian Association will have a "Thanksgiving at Home," at which all young men are invited. It will be an informal occasion, consisting of an old-time, enjoyable celebration.

At the Christian church there will be union services held at 7:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. C. P. Williamson, Rev. J. W. Lee and Rev. Henry McDonald. The offerings will be particularly abundant in the church.

How About That Dinner?

You'll be selecting a Thanksgiving dinner early.

That is an essential feature of the occasion, and it is one day in the year on which everybody wishes to have a noonday feast. The observance would not be complete without it.

The market is tottering under the loads of delicious eatables, and there is a plentiful variety to select from. Of course a plump turkey will be the attraction, and every turkey will be ready.

The turkeys are most of them, dressed. They weigh from six to twenty pounds, and are 16 and 18 cents a pound, but not only will you find investing in the best and largest for a turkey comes but once a year.

Chickens are 17 cents a pound; ducks, 16 cents; and geese 16 cents, but they are all very cheap. That completes the poultry market.

In fish, there are trout, blue fish, red snapper, sheepshead, bass and catfish, for 10 cents a pound.

Pompano and mackerel bring 20 to 25 cents. Lake salmon, brook and fresh-water trout are plentiful at 12 cents.

There are black fish and whiting at 33 cents a string.

Standard or stew oysters cost 30 cents a quart.

Blitz selects are 40 cents.

Norfolk selects bring 50 cents.

Mobile plants are very scarce and are dear at 20 cents.

In game squirrel and rabbits can be easily had for 10 to 15 cents.

Quails bring $2 a dozen. These form the main game market.

The choice vegetables begin with green peas 25 cents a quart.

Snap beans and squash are new and cost 20 cents.

Cucumbers and new tomatoes are 40 cents.

Califlowers are somewhat scarce yet and are to be had for 30 to 40 cents a head.

After looking through the market the question arises as to what one should get.

It'll be turkey and cranberries by all means, and celery, afterwards vegetables, with macaroni and cheese, perhaps game, some oysters fish, and other delicacies to conclude with, and the prospect of such a meal is enough to make any man glad.

Among the Schools.

The schools will, of course, be closed tomorrow. It will prove doubly enjoyable to the children; they will get both the holiday and the pleasing observance.

Then the school boys are looking forward eagerly to that turkey.

The board of education will not meet tomorrow, although it is the regular day for the session. The meeting has been postponed until Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock.

A Thanksgiving dinner will be given for the benefit of Trinity Home Mission at 7 o'clock tomorrow evening. Miss R. E. Rich is the chairman of the committee on arrangements.

A WONDERFUL WELL.

The Fountain of Perpetual Youth Discovered in Atlanta.

VOLNEY DUNNING'S WONDERFUL WELL

Has Made Many Grow Strong and Healthy and Possesses Wonderful Health-Giving Elements.

Has the fountain of perpetual youth been at last found in Atlanta?

Mr. Volney Dunning, the well-known citizen at one time prominent in city politics, resides at No. 106 Kewmont.

There is nothing strange about that, but he has a well at the back of his nice residence, which is something more than an ordinary well.

The water is not known to be possessed of any curative qualities, but it certainly promotes good health.

Mr. Dunning has been living at his present residence for twenty years.

When he had the house built at that time, which, by the way, is the house in which he now lives, he had a well dug in the backyard.

No peculiar formation was noticed at the bottom of the well which would suggest anything other than ordinary free-water, but when Mr. Dunning began using the water he noticed that it had a peculiar taste, different from ordinary well water.

For twenty years Mr. Dunning and his family have drunk from this well, and from no other, and the results are eminently satisfactory.

Every member of the family is a picture of health and none have ever had a day's sickness during the twenty years.

Mr. Dunning and his friends all attribute it to the wonderful water which is produced by his well.

Many citizens of Atlanta remember Mr. Dunning's father, Hon. James L. Dunning. He was a very small man, weighing only about one hundred and twenty pounds.

Mr. Dunning's mother was also small. In striking contrast to both of them is Mr. Dunning. He is one of the most portly of Atlanta's citizens.

The members of his family are also very large and healthy. He has a son weighing 250 pounds, and one weighing 235 pounds.

His wife weighs 180, and his daughter weighs 155, and are pictures of health.

Mr. Dunning firmly believes that it all results from the water.

Mr. Dunning's neighbors have no such well, and many of them believe in the health-giving properties of the water that comes from Mr. Dunning's well, and send for it every day.

"I have never had it analyzed," said Mr. Dunning yesterday in response to inquiries, "although I have often thought of doing so. During the yellow fever epidemic in Savannah in 1876, my brother and sister were stricken with the disease, and my father died. They drank the water and got well. Now, I don't say the water cured them, but it might have done it, and I merely mention it. Everybody who has visited us has been struck by the taste of the water. It is hard like sea water, and we cannot use it for washing purposes."

The water is certainly remarkable, and it might prove to analysts to have wonderful curative properties.

BACK FROM AUGUSTA.

The Confederate Veterans Who Visited the Exposition Return Home.

The Confederate Veterans who visited the Augusta exposition returned to Atlanta yesterday morning.

The party left Sunday, composed of Judge Landrum, A. N. Cox, M. L. Bridwell and daughter, John Clay Smith, J. T. Echols, John Holliday, L. J. Woolf, T. J. Ragland, W. T. Boyd, W. J. Wheeler, D. T. Johns, D. Buice, P. K. Fowler, M. B. Blackburn and J. Simmons.

They attended the exposition on Monday and were extended every courtesy by the Richmond county Confederate Veterans, who invited the gentlemen to participate in the sham battle that was held. The Atlanta party will remember the pleasant treatment with appreciation.

THE LAST DAY.

The Registration Books Close at 9 O'Clock Tonight.

THE TOTAL WILL REACH 7,200.

A Rousing Meeting for Citizens' Ticket Last Night—The Election Managers and Polling Places for Different Wards.

The registration books close today. To register, your taxes for 1890 must be paid. This entitles you to register, but remember that the payment of your taxes does not register you. Mr. C. K. Maddox, in the city hall, will receipt for your taxes and register you.

Call on him at once—Atlanta needs your vote.

THIS IS THE TICKET.

Alderman, North Side—W. W. BOYD.
Alderman, South Side—J. M. STEPHENS.
COUNCILMEN:
First Ward—O. RENEAU.
Second Ward—JOHN COLVIN.
Third Ward—JOHN S. MCWATERS.
Fourth Ward—WILLIAM M. HILL.
Fifth Ward—CHARLES S. NORTON.
Sixth Ward—T. D. MEADOR.

It's the largest registration ever known for a city election, said Mr. C. K. Maddox last night as he added up the registration for yesterday. "I put down the total at 7,200."

Today is the last day the registration books will be open for the municipal election. If you have not registered yet do so at once, this morning, or you cannot vote in next week's election. The books close at 9 o'clock tonight.

The number of voters registering yesterday was larger than on any previous day—540 in all.

In the first ward—which, by the way, is ahead in point of numbers for the day—forty-eight whites and fifty-five colored voters registered yesterday.

The second ward turns up with ninety-six whites and thirty-five colored.

When the day closed thirty-five whites and thirty-five colored voters had registered from the third ward.

From the fourth ward thirty-two whites and forty-nine colored voters registered.

Fifty-five whites and twenty-two colored came from the fifth.

The sixth did not sustain its reputation for registering the largest number yesterday—seventy whites and twenty-five colored voters registered from that ward.

The total registration to date, including yesterday, is as follows:

First ward, white, 842
colored, 228
Second ward, white, 978
colored, 113
Third ward, white, 684
colored, 254
Fourth ward, white, 615
colored, 492
Fifth ward, white, 745
colored, 202
Sixth ward, white, 1,163
colored, 232

Total, 6,739

The Campaign.

As the campaign draws nearer to an end the fight grows warmer, and it becomes more apparent that the citizens' ticket is coming in a big winner.

Some good work is being put in every day by the candidates on both sides.

There was a big meeting at Schell's hall last night in the interest of the citizens' ticket. It was largely attended and much enthusiasm was manifested. There were several speeches.

There was the usual rally of the anti-barroomites at Prohibition hall, which was well attended.

Meetings Tonight.

The M. A. B. will meet at their hall, 27½ East Alabama street, tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

MR. HURTEL FINED.

The Murphy-Hurtel-Hastings Trial in the Recorder's Court Yesterday.

THE SAME OLD STORY IS TOLD

The Testimony of the Same as the Published Statements—Hastings Fined Twenty-Five Dollars, and Hurtel Fifteen.

Messrs. A. A. Murphy, Gordon Hurtel and Jack Hastings were arraigned before Recorder Calhoun yesterday afternoon charged with disorderly conduct and quarrelling.

The cases were made against them because of that now famous street fight about two weeks ago.

The trial consumed the whole afternoon and, with the exception of two or three minor cases, all other business was suspended until today.

Mr. Burton Smith represented Messrs. Hastings and Hurtel, while Mr. Frank Arnold cared for Mr. Murphy. Mr. Smith questioned the court briefly as to the character of testimony that would be admissible in the city cases.

Judge Calhoun ruled that inasmuch as there were other cases pending against Messrs. Hurtel and Hastings in a higher court, he would simply admit testimony relating to disorder and public disorder created by the fight.

Mr. Murphy's witnesses were introduced first. Mr. Murphy's testimony was about the same as the interview and card published in the newspapers the day after the difficulty. He said that Mr. Hastings struck him fully twenty blows with a policeman's club. This—a considerable increase over the former figures—made about the only difference in his testimony and published card.

Mr. Murphy introduced six witnesses, all of whom corroborated his statement, with the exception of two, who got slightly mixed up.

One witness swore that it was Mr. Hurtel who struck Mr. Murphy with the billy from the rear, instead of Mr. Hastings.

Another swore that Mr. Alf Harper was a party to the whole affair, and engaged in the fight, jumping on Mr. Murphy after he was knocked down.

The rebuttal testimony was sufficiently clear and strong to cause Judge Calhoun to exclude all evidence, implicating Mr. Harper, in any way.

Mr. Hastings and Mr. Hurtel were put on the stand and both made statements outlining the part they took in the difficulty and their reasons therefor. Their evidence was simply a reiteration of their public statements following the difficulty.

Mr. Stewart Woodson was introduced, and swore that Mr. Hastings did not strike Mr. Murphy until after Captain E. M. Roberts caught hold of and was holding Mr. Hurtel.

This was a direct contradiction of the testimony of Mr. Murphy and his witnesses, all of whom swore that Mr. Hastings struck Mr. Murphy before anyone touched him.

When the testimony was all in the attorneys each made speeches of about thirty minutes.

Mr. Smith took the position that Mr. Hurtel's action in attacking Mr. Murphy was justifiable, in consequence of Mr. Murphy's card denouncing Mr. Hurtel as a liar.

Judge Calhoun ruled that Mr. Hurtel was justifiable in making the attack, and said he had made it in a room or private place instead of on a public thoroughfare he would not have fined him at all, but under the circumstances he would fine him $15 and cost for disorderly conduct.

Mr. Hastings was given $25 and cost. Mr. Murphy was discharged. The testimony was all taken down for future reference.

THE FACULTY EXPLAINS.

The Professors of the Southern Medical College Write a Card.

The faculty of the Southern Medical college has made an explanation of the connection of Dr. Julian Thomas with the college.

The question has been freely discussed as to whether he withdrew from the faculty or whether his violation of its code of ethics was a virtual dismissal.

The following card will set the matter at rest.

CAN IT BE MOVED?

The Capitol Avenue People Want the Executive Mansion.

AN ORGANIZED EFFORT STARTED

How the Idea Originated and Grew—What Prominent Citizens Say—A Committee Confers with the Governor.

An organized movement has been started by prominent and wealthy citizens of South Atlanta, which may result in the removal of the executive mansion from Peachtree street to Capitol avenue.

This beautiful residence avenue bids fair to become a formidable rival of north Atlanta's pride in more respects than one.

It is to be beautified and improved in a variety of ways.

It is to be paved with asphalt from one end to the other, and will then afford one of the most attractive drives in Atlanta.

"We ought to have the governor's residence over on this side of town," Comptroller General Wright said to a party of friends in a Washington street car a few weeks ago.

"You are right," remarked Dr. J. W. Rankin.

"Why not?" inquired Mr. O. E. Mitchell, with animation.

"The Capitol is here," said Mr. E. W. Marsh. "And the executive mansion should by rights be here, too."

This casual conversation was the germ which has already ripened into action.

The property owners who live on Capitol avenue held a meeting a few weeks ago, and one of the members broached the question of moving the executive mansion.

The more suggestion drew out the latent enthusiasm of nearly every one present, and many original ideas were then and there born.

A sprightly interchange of views followed and a singular unanimity of sentiment was disclosed. Everybody agreed that the proposition was an excellent one—that the idea was the inspiration of genius.

Mr. J. C. P. Johnson, an ardent proponent of the project, wanted some organized action started. He moved that a committee be appointed to look into the matter and to confer with Governor Northen about it.

This committee, obedient to its instructions, made a formal visit to Governor Northen, and Mr. Johnson briefly and clearly stated the object of the call.

The governor received the gentlemen courteously, and gave them an attentive hearing. The idea of moving the executive mansion from the Capitol street to Capitol avenue was discussed, and he thought of it before, had discussed it, and had decided in his own mind that it should be done.

He gave the members of the committee assurances of his cordial commendation of their enterprise, and offered to serve them in any way he could. The committee felt that a preliminary victory had been gained, and exultantly reported the result of the interview to the Capitol avenue citizens.

One gentleman at once suggested a site for the mansion. He stated that a three-acre lot, situated beautifully on the heights just beyond Georgia avenue, could be bought for $10,000; that another tract of land containing four acres, just across the street from the other tract, could be had for about fourteen thousand dollars.

"Either of these lots," said Dr. J. N. Craig, "will do. The governor's house should be in the center of spacious grounds. There should be lovely lawns, luxuriant shrubbery, artistic statuary and ornate fountains. And the mansion should be on the same street as the Capitol."

It will require an act of the legislature to sell the executive mansion and land adjoining it. The committee will seek to push through the general assembly such a measure. They expect to receive the co-operation of Governor Northen and the Fulton county members.

The residence known as the executive mansion is the property of Georgia. It was sold to the state for $100,000 in gold bonds, which bonds were subsequently bought by Henry Claws for $85,000. The negotiations were conducted by Mr. John H. James in 1871, by Mr. George W. Bullock was in office. The property is situated at the corner of Peachtree and Cain streets, with a frontage of about one hundred and forty-five feet on Peachtree and about four hundred and twelve feet on Cain street.

"What is this property worth?" a judge was asked yesterday.

ARBOR DAY.

The First Friday in December Will Be a Holiday in the Schools.

THE EXERCISES ON THAT DAY.

State School Commissioner Bradwell Sends Out a Circular to the County School Commissioners.

One week from Friday is "Arbor Day," in Georgia.

This day has been made a holiday in the public schools of the state by the laws of Georgia. The day is to be observed, by the children as the superintendent and teachers think best in order to show the pupils the value and beauty of forestry by practical tree planting on school, church and other public lots, lawns, as well as on public highways.

State School Commissioner Bradwell yesterday issued circulars to the county school commissioners of the state, in which he cited the law governing Arbor Day, and giving a full programme to be observed by the children in the public schools all over the state.

The programme is in itself a most interesting one. The exercises of the day begin in the schoolroom by reading an appropriate passage from the scriptures, by the teacher. This is followed by an invocation, to be recited in concert, beginning:

Like bright birds of springtime,
Our praises we bring
To thee, O God, our Father,
Thy love and Thy power
We praise and adore.

The children will then sing, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," which will be followed by the reading of the law in reference to "Arbor Day," and letters in reference to it.

Recitations appropriate to the day will be read by selected pupils. Then will follow reading, declamation, address and voting for the tree or flower which shall be the emblem of the school for the year.

Then comes the exercises at the tree, which consists of recitations by selected pupils and Forester's drill. Each child will carry a branch, and will step forward expressing some sentiment or quotation regarding the tree represented.

The exercises will be closed by singing, "Woodman, Spare That Tree." The exercises, when properly carried out, are very interesting. Captain Bradwell has a large number of copies of a book called "Arbor Day Leaves," which he mails to each county school commissioner.

The public schools of Atlanta have not yet made any arrangements for observing "Arbor Day," but should do so by all means.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIAL.

A Varied Programme at the First Presbyterian Church Last Night.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the young people of the First Presbyterian congregation occurred last night in the basement of the church.

The lecture room was crowded. The programme of the evening was as follows:

Recitation—Miss Beale Draper.
Vocal Solo—Mrs. Wells.
Recitation—Miss Mages.

THE COMPANY ORGANIZED.

The Nantahala Marble Company Is Ready to Go to Work.

The stockholders of the Nantahala Marble and Tale Company met last night in the Chamber of Commerce.

A full board of directors was elected. The property of the company is located in Swain county, North Carolina, and is capitalized at $1,000,000. A majority of the stock was represented at the meeting. Every one present was enthusiastic and cheerful. The board elected is composed of:

Messrs. H. S. Johnson, John M. Green, W. H. Patterson, E. C. Peters, T. C. Sawtell, Grant Wilkins, L. J. Hill, George Winslow, L. B. Nelson and James R. Wyllie, of Atlanta; Mr. C. H. Phinizy, of Augusta; Mr. W. G. Solomon, of Macon; Mr. Frank Dewar, of Nelson; Mr. Joseph McDonough, of Cincinnati, and Mr. N. G. Oatis, of Midland, Ga.

This is the first meeting of the stockholders since the organization, and every one is highly pleased with the work. The Nantahala property was examined by Hall Bros., civil and mining engineers of this city, and their report appeared in The Constitution of the 14th inst. Since then the stock has all been subscribed, and the present company formed, under the able management of Colonel A. J. McBride. The stock full board are among the best business men of the south. Work on the property will begin at once.

SHE WAS A COUNTESS.

The Social Happenings of a Day in Atlanta.

MRS. ROBERT LOWRY'S COACHING PARTY.

Delightful Party at Mrs. Clarence Knowles. Miss Bigby's Luncheon—A Variety of Pleasant Entertainments.

The week, though not as replete with big events as the past one, seems to be going very quickly for the people taking part in the many charming small affairs that are going on nearly every hour of the forenoon and evening.

On yesterday afternoon Miss Bolton entertained them, at a delightful luncheon. Miss Bolton is the daughter of Major Channing Bolton, who is chief engineer of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company. The family has resided here since the removal of the headquarters of that great system to Atlanta, making it home at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Chamberlin.

Miss Bolton is a charming girl and will be a great addition to Atlanta society. This afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lowry will give a coaching party in honor of these young ladies, and this will be followed by a dinner tendered them by Captain and Mrs. Henry Jackson.

On Thursday afternoon Judge Hopkins and Mr. Rea Hill will entertain them with an elegant luncheon at the club. And so they will take their departure with a record of belittlement to be greatly envied.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Knowles gave Miss Condit Smith and Miss Brock a delightful dinner on Monday evening. The guests present were: Dr. and Mrs. Nelson, Miss Clarke, Miss Marsh, Miss Condit Smith, Miss Brock, Mr. Will Chapin, Mr. Berry, Mr. Archibald McIlwaine, Jr., and Mr. Thomas Higginson.

Miss Louise Bigby gave a delightful luncheon yesterday afternoon. The guest present were: Miss Julia Wilkins, Miss Nannie Sue Hill of Newman, Miss Clara Wilkins, Mr. Charles Wimberly, Mr. Thomas B. Palmer.

After the luncheon Mr. Charles Williams honored the guests with a charming box party.

Miss Belle Love was not driving yesterday, and her sweet, bright face made everybody who saw her feel that the pink hyacinth bells of April were ringing their joyful bells on the November air. She is looking more lovely than ever since her illness, and the world is a thousand times brighter and better for her return to its life and pleasure.

Mrs. B. H. Richardson, of Columbus, stopped in the city a few hours yesterday on her return from a visit to New York.

The following from The Lexington Transcript will be read with great interest in Atlanta where Mrs. Oton has many friends and admirers:

"The state college was the scene last night of another great triumph for Mrs. Bessie Miller Oton, our astute and dramatic reader. 'But Mrs. Oton!' To say that she is a genius but only expresses her supreme versatility, her magnificently interpreted, her wonderful charm. When she recites one loses sight of the imitative feature of her work. All that she does stands out as the emanation of her own brain. Viewed from an artist's standpoint it is an irreparable loss to the world that this gifted woman is not on the dramatic stage. With the blood of the blue grass aristocracy dashing in restless currents through her veins, the exceeding fineness of her nature, the exquisite taste that is best in her renditions. She is bewitching in every attitude. Every line of her form breathes the poetry of motion; every throb of her wondrous pulses gives out her perfect womanhood. The emotions, whether of joy or grief, make or gentle, violent or pathetic, emanate from her soul through eye and lip and voice and gesture, with a fidelity that demands fullest sympathy from her hearers. Her voice alone, with its varied cadences, would give out the grandest of human passions, were she motionless as a statue."

"Mrs. Oton first gave the mother's agony in 'Jamie,' then the perplexity of the 'Senator' in his entanglement; the various emotions of the heart in her act, beginning with 'Little Miss Chief,' and ending with a marvelous portrayal of her subjects. It is safe to say Mrs. Oton has never had a rival in this city."

"Mrs. Oton wears a pink crepe de chine, with gorgeous chrysanthemums, in her first recitation. Her musical number, 'The Bridge,' and the 'Awakening of the Statue' were as diverse as impressive. The evening was rare and charming."

Captain James W. Morrow and family have left their lovely country home, 'Breezy Point,' at West End, for the winter months, and will be the guests of Major Robert M. Anderson's family at 80 Capitol avenue.

Miss Mamie Hatcher, a charming young lady of Macon, is visiting Miss Hattie Snook, on Courtland avenue. Miss Hatcher and Miss Snook were together at school, and the warm friendship there inaugurated still exists.

Mr. Gus T. Dodd and Miss Julia Behne, of Nashville, will be united in marriage tonight at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Jackson, 555 Capitol avenue. The ceremony will be performed by Dr. J. W. Lee, after which the bride and groom will leave on the Air-Line for New York, Washington and Philadelphia, to be gone for two or three weeks.

Mr. Dodd is a member of the firm of Shropshire & Dodd, and is a prominent and rising young business man, who numbers his friends by the hundred. Miss Behne is a young lady with many beautiful traits of character, and is highly esteemed by her many friends.

One of the most interesting events arranged for next week will be the opening of the ladies' bazaar for the benefit of the Immaculate Conception convent. The bazaar will be held in the convent and will be conducted on a larger scale than any that has been held here before. The entire proceeds of the first floor of the convent will be devoted to the purpose, and for three days, beginning on Tuesday, December 1st, the large parlors and dining hall will present a busy scene.

The ladies who have been in charge of the bazaar have been diligently working, and hope to make it a splendid success. The cause for which the bazaar is to be held is one which should enlist the sympathy and support of all good people, and especially Catholics.

Arrangements will be made for serving meals and lunches all day long on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week. The convent will be thrown open those three days and the public generally is invited to attend.

MACON, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—This afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, Mr. Charles Carnes, son of Captain W. W. Carnes and a member of the real estate and insurance firm of Carnes & Carnes, was united in marriage to Miss Annie Belle Tennille. The ceremony occurred at the First Baptist church, Rev. G. N. Nunnally officiating. Miss Estelle Tennille was maid of honor and Miss Sam Hunter best man. The following were attendants:

Miss Bessie Aubrey and Mr. George Hamner, ger of Columbus.
Miss Lillian Lawton and Legare Walker.
Miss Helen Ross and Basil Wise.
Miss Willie Tinsley and Ed Jordan.
Miss Sallie Nunnally and Ed Culey.
Miss Emma Wise and Ed Wiley.
Miss Bertha Williamson and Lee Jordan, Hawkinsville.
Miss Louise Hunter and Robert Hazeltine.
Miss Florence Nisbet and Jim McCaw.
Mr. and Mrs. Carnes left on the 4:30 o'clock train for Memphis to visit relatives of the groom.

Doctors Coming to Atlanta.
A staff of physicians and surgeons will arrive from New York Thursday, November 26th, and permanently locate at 80½ Whitehall street, who will visit these eminent doctors before December 25th will receive advice and examination free of charge, and all necessary treatment is placed in pursuing this course is to become rapidly and personally acquainted with the sick and afflicted. The doctors treat every variety of diseases and deformity, but will not accept incurable cases. Your remedy is beyond all hope they will frankly tell you so; also, caution you against spending money for useless treatments. Catastrophes in the various forms, cured by their new method. Remember date and go early, as their offices will be crowded. Hours: 9 a. m. to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m.

SHE WAS A COUNTESS.

A Romantic Marriage at St. Philip's Church Monday Night.

THE COUNTESS DE BEDCOURT WEDS

Hon. Frederick Townsend, of England, with the Simplest of Ceremonies—The Story of the Countess.

HYMENAL—TOWNSEND—AROSTEGUI—Married, at St. Philip's church, by the Rev. Dr. Tupper, Mr. Frederick E. Townsend of Y. de Barnwell Arostegui, countess of the Bedcourt. That was all. It could not have been less if it had been the announcement of the union of John Smith and Sarah Ann Jones.

There was no superfluous word, although it was the announcement of the marriage of an English lord to an European countess of immense wealth.

The marriage was more simple still. There was no grand procession of guests; no ushers; no cards; no wedding march; no gifts. It was simplicity itself.

The groom, a handsome, quiet-looking, middle-aged gentleman, the bride, a charming lady, who was yet young; a lady and gentleman and the white-robed rectory who read the beautiful Episcopal ceremony, comprised the marriage party.

The ceremony was soon read by Dr. Tupper, a few words of congratulation were quickly said, and the new-made bride and groom, and the lady and gentleman who accompanied them, got in the carriage waiting for them and drove away.

It was a simple marriage ceremony for a wealthy English lord and a wealthy countess. The Countess de Bedcourt, or in other words, M. Y. de Barnwell Arostegui, has resided in Atlanta for some months. When she first came here she resided with a family at Edgewood, and lived there very quietly for some time.

She made a few acquaintances, talked little of her title, but those who knew her well were deeply attached to her. It was known that she had considerable wealth, and she invested to some extent in Atlanta real estate.

A few weeks ago she left Edgewood and took up her residence at the Arlington hotel, where she made many friends.

She came to the Kimball to reside about a month ago, and has lived there since. Three or four days ago a quiet gentleman came to the Kimball, and registered as Frederick E. Townsend, England.

He had known the Countess Arostegui for some time, and had fallen in love with her. It was for the purpose of pressing his suit that he came to Atlanta.

The Countess Arostegui agreed to the marriage on condition that it be kept quiet. Sunday Mr. Townsend called on Dr. Tupper, and arranged for the ceremony, which occurred Monday night.

After the marriage the couple went to the Kimball, where they were entertained by two well-known Atlanta ladies.

The titled and wealthy couple left for New York on a night train for a bridal trip. They will return within a week and will make Atlanta their home.

There is a story, which cannot be traced to any reliable source, that the countess was married a few years ago to a Spanish count, in New Orleans, with brilliant ceremonies. As the story goes, the count fell in love with another woman, and caused the countess to be imprisoned in an insane asylum, where she remained for a few years. Since then she has been going about the country incognito. She met Mr. Townsend, who it is said is an English lord, about a year ago, with the result stated.

There are many stories told about the great wealth of the countess and her superb collection of diamonds.

A FEAST OF MELODY.

The first concert of the season next Saturday Night.

The first concert of the Young Men's Christian Association star course will be given next Saturday night by the New York Symphony Club.

The entertainment will be given by the concert season, and the attendance will doubtless be very large.

So excellent a company as this rarely visits the south. It is composed of artists of the highest ability.

The personnel of the club is as follows: Mlle. Enrichetta-Edica, prima donna soprano; Miss Agnes Florin, dramatic soprano; W. H. Stenger, tenor; Charles F. Higgins, violin virtuoso; Rudolph von Scarpa, solo pianist; and H. Cornelius, clarinet soloist.

Speaking of Charles F. Higgins, The Musical Courier of New York, says: "This celebrated violin virtuoso's reputation, both at home and abroad, places him among the foremost of the few really great artists who have mastered the intricacies of that king of instruments."

The Boston Transcript, The New York Herald, The Chicago Times, and other leading journals concur with The Musical Courier in its high estimate of Mr. Higgins's superb abilities as an executant.

Referring to the prima donna, The American Art Journal says:

"Mlle. Edica is attracting much attention in Paris musical circles. She has been studying the part of Mrs. Minc, in the opera, 'The Warbler' will be remembered in Philadelphia, where her beautiful voice was heard for four years in the 'Euphonia' choral. Mlle. Edica possesses the finest American voice that has been heard in Paris for years."

Alluding to Miss Florin, the New York World says:

"Her sweet contralto voice was heard last evening to good advantage in the rendition of Verdi's 'Aida.' Miss Florin also sang a difficult selection from Rossini's 'Semiramide' in truly artistic style."

Mr. H. Cornelius, the solo clarinet player, has no equal in the country. Pat Gilmore says: "He is the greatest exponent of this instrument I have ever heard play."

Rudolph von Scarpa, the solo pianist, comes from Paris with the highest recommendations. The Paris Figaro says: "He is undoubtedly one of the greatest solo pianists of the day."

The other members of the company are all first-rate.

The Young Men's Christian Association made a ten-strike in securing the New York Symphony Club for its first concert this season.

AN ANNUAL MEETING.

THE CONDUCTORS' MUTUAL AID AND BENEFIT ASSOCIATION.

An Excursion Party of Conductors Stops Over in Atlanta.

THEY LIKED THE CITY VERY MUCH.

The Conductors' Mutual Aid and Benefit Association on a Trip to Florida—General Gossip of the Traffic World.

An excursion party numbering 110 in all arrived in the city yesterday and spent the afternoon here. The visitors were members of the Conductors' Mutual Aid and Benefit Association.

The association held its seventeenth annual convention in Chicago last Friday and Saturday, and on Sunday started on an excursion to Florida. Monday was spent in Chattanooga. A special train, tendered by the East Tennessee, carries the party, which left last night for Jacksonville. From that point visits will be made to St. Augustine, down the St. Johns, over to Tampa and possibly to Indian river.

In about two weeks the excursionists will pass through Atlanta on their return.

Secretary Huntington said last night that the short stay in Atlanta had been greatly enjoyed. The city's cleanliness impressed the strangers, and they were complimentary.

Mr. J. Flory, of St. Louis, is the association's representative. The organization is purely an insurance institution. Its membership is limited to 1,500, and is restricted to freight and passenger conductors in the United States, Canada and Mexico. In case of death or total disability a benefit of $2,500 is paid. This is provided from assessments of $2.50 every month. Occasionally there is an extra assessment, the average amount paid in by each member per annum is $35.

There are a few members in Georgia and a large number in South Carolina. Since the organization, seventeen years ago, the association has paid in benefits six hundred thousand dollars in benefits.

V. H. Coffin, of the Pennsylvania railroad, is the conductor in charge of the excursion train.

THIS IS THE BEST.

Six Miles of Double Track That Cannot Be Beat.

The Georgia Pacific has completed six miles of double track from the city out to Peyton, which is about the finest bit of road in the country.

It is laid with seventy-pound rails, and is finely ballasted. The work was done by Roadmaster J. T. Alexander, and in it he has something to be proud of. Superintendent Ryder inspected it yesterday, and was highly pleased with the excellence of the job.

The extension of the road to increase the road's terminal facilities here.

COLONEL HAWKINS'S DILEMMA.

Savannah Wants Him to Extend His Road from Lyons.

Savannah is encouraging Colonel Hawkins to extend the Sam road from Lyons to the coast. There is a gap of sixty miles between Savannah and Lyons. Until the falling out between the Central and Colonel Hawkins, the Sam's business went into Savannah over the Savannah and Western. Now it is diverted to the coast by Brunswick, and a part of it goes to Brunswick, and a part is diverted at Jessup over the Savannah, Florida and Western to Savannah. Unfortunately, the Sam people, they antagonized the Savannah, Florida and Western by fighting for business in territory which they do not touch directly.

There are some miles of road that can be built for $25,000 it is said. With the road completed, Savannah would have another line and a direct one to Montgomery. The Savannah News says:

"Some railroad people think if the Sam is completed to Savannah, it will mean a Louisville and Nashville line of steamers to New York. The Louisville and Nashville and the Sam people are on friendly terms at Montgomery, and the big system is quite anxious to get a connection to get into Savannah to compete with the Richmond and Danville. The Louisville and Nashville people, it is said, on good authority, are determined to get to the coast, even if they have to build here themselves. An air-line from Atlanta to Savannah being considered by them, in event they can't get there by a satisfactory connection."

The Louisville and Nashville and Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—The news that the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery had, or is arranging to, combine with the Louisville and Nashville system, created much talk in Savannah today. The Louisville and Nashville has long been quietly seeking an outlet on the Atlantic coast, and it has been well known that the deep water wharves here had attracted and held the attention of the Louisville and Nashville people. At Montgomery, the Louisville and Nashville, through its own lines, has splendid connections, and that point is one of the terminals of the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery. By building about sixty miles of road the latter line will reach Savannah over an independent route, and acting in concert with the Louisville and Nashville would give the great system entrance to Savannah and afford it one of the finest ports in the country. The row between the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery and the Richmond and Danville, the desire for a port by the Louisville and Nashville, and the easy manner in which the latter line has been able to make a connection between these roads, gives color to the news of a probable combination. If the combination is made and the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery builds into Savannah, it will be able not only to offer the shortest route to Montgomery, but also a direct route to many prominent southern and western points, giving Savannah the advantage of a strong competition to many places. This will relieve the city to a great extent of its dependence upon the present systems entering here, and cannot fail to be beneficial in a business way. Business men are well pleased with the prospect that the reports indicate.

Change in Schedule.

LAGRANGE, Ga., November 24.—[Special.]—The accommodation train on the Atlanta and West Point railroads, which has been running on the Georgia Pacific, will be discontinued on Monday, November 25th, and will be replaced by a passenger train.

The train leaves this place at 5 o'clock a. m. for Atlanta, returning at 7:35 in the evening.

The Scrap Heap.

The East Tennessee's Kimball house ticket office has been fitted up handsomely within and artistically decorated on the outside. Mr. Ed Perkins has the most tastefully finished quarters in the city.

The Georgia Pacific is operating a double track between Birmingham and Weems, nine miles, by the block system. One day last week fifty-two freight trains passed over the road.

All the Alabama roads are handling a heavy train traffic.

No new developments appear in the Macon and Atlantic's affairs.

Macon's branch of the National Railway League is to be organized tonight.

After today the Macon and Birmingham road will take off its passenger train. When the road was first opened an accommodation freight service was given, and later a passenger train was put out. One trip was made each way per day. Between Macon and LaGrange a good patronage was built up, but business never increased enough to pay expenses. Having no coal contracts the service had no revenue except from passengers. Conductor Norman, of this line, will be made yardmaster in Macon, and thus still remain in the employ of the road. Conductor Troutman, who has also been running on the Macon and Birmingham, will take a passenger train on the Georgia Southern.

Macon suggests that the Central should build a handsome depot at Plum and Poplar streets, or at the foot of Cherry street, to take the place of the old one which was burned.

Train No. 9 on the East Tennessee road made the run from Atlanta to Macon on Sunday night in two hours and eighteen minutes and made seventeen stops, something like fifty-five miles an hour.

GATE CITY GUARD

Entertain Their Friends at the Army.

A MOST DELIGHTFUL EVENING FOR ALL.

Fine Squad Drill and a Medal—A Happy Dance—The Grady Cadets at Work.

The Gate City Guard was at home last night, and several hundred guests, both ladies and gentlemen, were there with them.

The reception was a most royal one. The members were all clad in the handsome blue fatigue uniforms. The company flag, ribbons and pennants were displayed from the armory walls. The parlors, clubroom and armory were all brilliantly lighted, and until midnight the young people held full possession of them.

The programme of the evening opened with a drill by the company. This lasted about twenty minutes, during which time Captain Kendrick put the guard through work which was accurate in almost every detail.

Mr. E. M. Nunn played a flute solo which was well received.

The Gate City Guard quintet made another delight hit by singing the "Old Oaken Bucket." As an encore they gave "Way Down on the River" with splendid melody. Messrs. Cordon, Van Zandt, Storer, Parker and Christian comprise the quintet.

Professor Widenmeyer, the clarinet specialist, gave a delightful solo on his wonderful reed. Professor Howell followed with the piano solo.

The interest of the evening centered in the prize drill by the picked men of the Guard. The most beautiful drilling under the scrutiny of the judges, Captain J. B. Hollis, of the Zouaves, and Captain Macon B. Spencer, of the Rifles.

One by one they dropped out until, at last, Sergeant George S. Lowman remained alone. Hearty clapping followed in conclusion as the drill came to a close without an error by Sergeant Lowman.

Colonel Calhoun stepped before the winning contestant and in a neat and complimentary speech presented the prize—a heavy gold medal of beautiful design. Colonel Calhoun said, among other things:

"The militia of Atlanta was deserving of better encouragement on the part of Atlanta's citizens. Few realized the importance and practical value of having a well-organized and well-equipped soldiery at hand, and in times of security people were apt to lose sight of real objects and practical benefits of the militia and see only the soldier boys, in their gaudy uniforms and pretty parades."

"There is a deeper purpose behind this discipline than mere parade, and in case of any great danger, when life and property become endangered, the citizens are liable suddenly to realize this fact."

The medal was then presented. Sergeant Lowman is left guide in the Guard.

The medal is the property of the company, and is to be a perpetual incentive to good drilling. It will be contested for anew once a month, and the best drilled man, of course, will wear it from contest to contest.

Refreshments were served in the upper parlors and balcony. The diagonal center table was beautifully arranged with fruits, cakes and flowers, and the side tables had repetition of these, one having a lemonade font in addition. The members were the graceful waiters, and they saw that each and every guest was well served.

The dancing began as soon the set programme was finished and lasted till midnight. The orchestra music was especially fine and those who delighted in the waltz had all they needed for complete happiness.

There were present many members of the other companies. The Guards entertain gracefully always, and their effort last night was as pronounced a success as their entertainments have been in the past.

FOUR DAYS' WORK.

Chief Joyner and the Foremen of the Fire Companies

COMPLETE A TOUR OF INSPECTION.

A Talk with the Chief—The Ball for the Benefit of the Benevolent Association on December 8th.

Chief Joyner and the foremen of the various companies completed their first general annual tour of inspection yesterday.

They visited every building in the business portion of the city, examining garrets and cellars, and it was not necessary to make a single case.

"We found the places we went to," said
Cap Joyner yesterday, "in splendid condition.
The men seemed to appreciate our visit and gave us every encouragement, and it was gratifying to find an improvement everywhere. The buildings were free from combustible material; we didn't find ashes in wooden boxes, and there was comparatively little rubbish scattered about."

"These visits are very important," continued the chief. "You have no idea how many fires they save. We look after the arrangement of fires, and try to have them done properly. A big percentage of fires is due to these when they are defective, and on our visits we make every effort to have this guarded against. It's tedious work and has to be done carefully, but it's worth all the pains."

"How long did it take you?" was asked.
"About four or five days," replied Mr.
Joyner, "but in that time we saw any number of staircases to climb and descend and it kept us very busy. That was a good thing in another respect—it made us familiar with the arrangements of the different buildings. I could break through a door anywhere in the business portion of the city and find my way in the darkness with ease."

"The foremen and I had several cellars cleaned out when the proprietors for the first time realized how valuable the space was, and straightway stacked goods in it. One man told me that it would save him a neat sum that he had been paying out for additional rental."

"Did you have any cases to make?"
"Not a single one. There was no cause for any, and in instances where everything was not as well looked after as it should have been, we had immediately taken it up, and it was done at the few occasions for doing even that."

"This inspection," the chief continued,
"was a general one. Of course, throughout the year I make occasional visits. Attention is frequently called to places that should be looked after, and I go there. Sometimes it's the fault of the negro janitor or the office boy.
Then a little threat about what would be done if the office is neglected scares them up and they attend to their business better. I seldom have to visit such places a second time."

"Do other cities have this system?" was asked.
"Yes, quite a number have patterned after Atlanta. I originated it several years ago, and since then the plan has been adopted by such far-away cities as Dallas, Tex., and Paterson, N. J., and the large cities are fast realizing the advantages of these inspections at certain intervals."

"There isn't any doubt that they have saved Atlanta a large amount of money and helped give her such a wonderful fire record. I am certainly thankful," concluded the chief,
"that the people see this and do whatever they can to assist me."

For Their Association.
The firemen started out yesterday to sell tickets for their ball on December 8th in the interests of their benevolent association.

Before night they turned in a neat sum as the result of their day's tour, and were highly encouraged by the liberal response on the part of those whom they visited.

There is every indication that the occasion will be an unusually enjoyable one, and the preparations are being made for an affair, successful in every way.

Chief Joyner has prepared the following bulletin which will explain itself.

To the Citizens of Atlanta—Some time since the firemen of the city met and organized the Firemen's Benevolent Association, and on the 14th day of November, 1887, a charter was obtained.
The objects of the association are to care for its sick and disabled members, to pay for the burial of a member in case of death, and to give a funeral in case of the death of a member, and to care for the family of a member who has died, and to do all that is possible to help the members in every way.

At a recent meeting it was decided to give a ball at Concordia hall on December 8th, and tickets are now offered for sale by the members of the department. We promise that it will be fraternal in every particular, and that our best efforts will be put forth to make it a successful
one. The fact that the selling of tickets pro-motedly admit persons of objectionable character has not been overlooked, and to guard against such mishap, we have decided to place at the door a sufficient number of the best officers of the city, with instructions to refuse admission to any person who would prove the least objectionable. Every fireman in the department has tickets for sale. If you can't attend, let the balance of a ticket and give it to those who can, for the money thus spent will be a worthy cause, that of helping the sick and disabled members of the association, and of caring for the families of those who are sick or disabled.

Some of our members are attending a ball or buying a ball ticket, and others might desire to make a donation. To all such we desire to say that every effort will be made to make the affair a success, and that every member of the association will be expected to do his part. We are very respectfully,
President Firemen's Benevolent Association.

THE COUNTY COURTHOUSE.

Gossip Gathered Yesterday in the Various Departments.

Ordinary Calhoun yesterday passed an order requiring the executor of the estate of the late Dr. Joseph P. Logan to execute titles to lands to Charles B. Rawlin.

J. H. Harwell was appointed trustee of the academy in Adamsville, in place of W.
M. F. Cowan, resigned.

In the superior court, Judge Marshall J.
Clarke presiding, the case of Mrs. Belle A.
Martin against the Georgia Central railway was resumed and consumed the entire day.
At the conclusion of Judge Pendleton's argument for the corporation the court adjourned.
It will be noon today before the case is finished.

In the city court of Atlanta, Judge Howard Van Epps presiding, the case of Cesar Seaton against the Georgia Pacific railroad for $10, was resumed for personal injuries, was given to the jury early yesterday morning and a verdict was rendered for the plaintiff for $1,750.

Judge Marshall J. Clarke spent an hour yesterday afternoon drawing panels of jurors for the court next week.

The grand jury will meet the 7th of December, and the criminal courts will begin work following week. The dockets will be unusually heavy.

Solicitor General Hill has returned from his hunt and is closely engaged in preparing bills for indictment against parties who will be tried at the next term of Judge Richard H. Clark's court.

WON'T TRY TO LIVE.

Craigmiles Writes That Life is Miserable to Him.

STILL WANTS HIS SWEETHEART.

He Would Die for Her Any Minute, and Is Sorry That His Attempt at Suicide Failed—Says He is Nearly Crazy.

A few weeks ago the police arrested a young man named Craigmiles on a charge of giving a bogus draft to a merchant from whom he had purchased clothing.

Craigmiles told a CONSTITUTION reporter that he is a Swedish immigrant in Atlanta and came here to see her. He said that he was editor of a paper in North Carolina, and claimed that he got in his trouble here through drink and morphine.

Two or three days his mother came to Atlanta and he was released and returned home.

In the letter published below, Craigmiles tells that stimulants and his trouble had driven him wild, and he does not remember what occurred during his visit to Atlanta.

Notwithstanding his admission that those days are a blank to him, he positively denies that he made certain statements attributed to him at the time by THE CONSTITUTION.

In the letter which follows, Craigmiles indicates that he will kill himself soon:

MURRAY, N. C., November 24.—Editor THE CONstitution: I hope you will allow me space in your paper to give you a side of the very unfortunate affair that has been in Atlanta last week.

You know there are always two sides to every story, and I think mine will be about as interesting as the other. I remember anything about the time that I didn't remember anything about how they, the drafts, got into my possession.

But I don't know, I know nothing about it, and today my visit to Atlanta, or the first few days of it, is as blank to me as if I had never been there. When I reached Atlanta I knew that I had something over one hundred dollars, for certain.
But when I was searched my money was found on me.

To get money in this hasty and reckless manner never entered my mind. And I don't believe now that I could have induced me to do as they say I did, if I had been in my proper senses, and myself.

When I started to Atlanta it was with the intention of paying a visit to, or being near the woman
I love better than life itself. I loved her to destruction, and the very thought that she would never be mine—I say the very thought, almost drove me crazy, and I am about that way yet.

After seeing her on that fatal Saturday evening, and finding that all my fond hopes were blasted forever, I concluded once to end my miserable, wretched, unhappy life.

I came back, went to my room, got full of liquor and swallowed fifteen grains of morphine, which I thought would accomplish its mission very soon. But I was mistaken. I had not taken enough, but after that I do not know.

NOTICE BY THE MAYOR AND GENERAL
council of the city of Atlanta, of an election to determine the question whether an election of the city of Atlanta shall be held on the 22d day of October, 1891, for the purpose of enlarging the water supply of said city.

Whereas, The Mayor and General Council of the city of Atlanta desire to issue $500,000 (five hundred thousand dollars) of thirty year bonds of said city for the purpose of enlarging the water supply of said city, in accordance with the constitution and laws of said state, and in pursuance of an act authorizing the charter of said city approved August 21st, 1881, and the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of said city being necessary to authorize the issue of said bonds.

And whereas, An ordinance was passed by the city council on the 20th day of October, 1891, and concurred in by the aldermen of said city on the 22d day of October, 1891, and approved by the mayor October 22d, 1891, provided for the holding of an election at the several voting precincts of said city, to-wit, on the first Wednesday, the second day of December, 1891, to determine the question whether the qualified voters of said city would assent to the issue of bonds as aforesaid.

Notice is therefore hereby given that an election will be held to determine the question aforesaid.
VOTERS WILL TAKE NOTICE.
1. That the amount of bonds proposed to be issued is $500,000; that they are to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per cent per annum, the principal to be paid in thirty years, and the principal and interest to be payable in gold or its equivalent; that the bonds are to be secured by the sale of the water supply of said city.

2. That the election will be held at the several voting precincts of said city, under the same rules and regulations that govern elections for mayor, aldermen and councilmen, and will be held with the election for aldermen and councilmen to be held on the same day, to-wit: December 2d, 1891.
3. That voters qualified to vote in the election for aldermen and councilmen are likewise qualified to vote on the question of issuing water bonds.

4. That the assent of two-thirds of the qualified voters of the city is necessary to authorize the issue of the bonds.

5. That if the bonds aforesaid are authorized and issued, provision will be made for the full payment of the principal and interest thereof within thirty years from the date of the issue.
6. Voters will have printed or written on their ballots "for water bonds," or "against water
bonds."

CAPITOL NEWS.

A Meeting of the Railroad Commission Yesterday.

TELEGRAPH AND EXPRESS COMPANIES

Head-More About the Smallpox Scare. The States' Depot at Chattanooga, in the Courts.

The railroad commission held a meeting yesterday.

Superintendent J. M. Stephens, of the Western Union Telegraph Company, appeared in response to a request from the commission, and gave certain information which it had asked for concerning rates and other matters connected with the telegraph company.

The superintendent of the Southern Express Company also submitted the rates of that company, and other facts asked for by the commission.

No action was taken upon the facts submitted by the representatives of the telegraph and express companies, but the rates will be looked into and some action taken regarding them at a later day.

This action of the railroad commission in asking these companies to submit information to them is in pursuance of the new law passed at the last session of the legislature, placing telegraph and express companies under the jurisdiction of the railroad commission. The commission asked the superintendents of these companies to make a showing of their rates to show if they needed any regulating.

An order was also passed by the commission for the building of a depot at Lumpkin and one at Shiloh, and asked for by the residents of these places. The depots are to be completed by June 1st, next, and are to be built according to certain specifications, laid down by the commission.

Other routine business was transacted before the meeting adjourned.

Forsyth wants better passenger accommodations and has appealed to the commission to cause the Central road to gratify their wishes in the matter.

The commission will visit Forsyth Friday, and see for themselves if better accommodations are needed and pass judgment on the case.

The Smallpox.

It is now but a matter of time before the smallpox will be wiped out in McIntosh and Liberty counties.

The scare is about over, but the people of that section think it wise to be on the safe side, and have applied to the governor for vaccine matter.

The following letter was received by the governor yesterday:

WATKINS, Ga., November 23.—Governor W. J. Northen, Dear Sir: Can you furnish me with vaccine points for the benefit of our people? It is the intention of our sanitary committee to cooperate with the mayor and council in enforcing compulsory vaccination. Respectfully, J. J. WALKER.

The governor wrote to Mr. Walker in reply that he would be glad to furnish him with the vaccine matter asked for, but he was only allowed to furnish it on application of the ordinary of the county for which it was wanted.

The following letter from the ordinary of McIntosh county, in which the scare has been worst, gives a fair idea of how it regarded down there:

DARLEN, Ga., November 24.—Hon. W. J. Northen, Governor. Your telegram was received and same sent to the chairman board of county commissioners, whose duty it is to attend to all such matters. I do not think that smallpox is epidemic in this county. We have none in Darlen, but there are a few cases in the country. I have not had time to see the chairman board tomorrow, and urge him to look into the matter and keep you advised. I know he will do all in his power to stay it out. Yours truly,
W. J. DOWNEY.

The State's Property.

Governor Northen yesterday appointed W. P. McClatchy and Messrs. Andrews and Barton to represent the case in the court of chancery of Hamilton county, Tennessee, in a case touching the state's interest in the Chattanooga union passenger depot.

Some time ago the East Tennessee road, which owns an interest in the building, filed an equity proceeding in the chancery court of Hamilton county, praying a decree for the sale of the union depot. The state of Georgia is involved to the amount of several thousand dollars, and as the petition of the East Tennessee road was filed, Assistant Attorney General Little went to Chattanooga and became fully acquainted with the facts and made a written report to the governor advising the appointment of the attorneys named above, they to be paid $1,500 for their services.

Capitol Notes.

Dr. W. O'Daniel, penitentiary physician, goes today to inspect the convict camps in different portions of southwest Georgia.

The resignation of Junior, Second Lieutenant W. E. McNeal, of the Southern Rifles, of Tallapoosa, was received by Adjutant General Kelly yesterday.

All the offices in the capitol will be closed tomorrow, it being Thanksgiving Day. Many of the state officials and department clerks, who do not live in the city, will enjoy their turkey at their respective homes, in different parts of the state.

THE HUMANE SOCIETY.

The Regular Monthly Meeting Was Held Yesterday Afternoon.

The regular meeting of the Humane Society was held yesterday in the parlors of the Young Men's Christian Association.

The report of the agent showed that during the past month twenty-eight cases of cruelty had been treated, eleven animals had been removed from the street, and offenders had been admonished and three children taken care of, one of whom, little Clara Loke, was placed in the custody of the Home for the Friendless. She has since been adopted by a worthy couple.

It was agreed to hold the general meeting of the society in the future every quarter, and that the executive committee should meet monthly as heretofore.

After considerable discussion as to the proposed entertainments to be given by the society this winter, the meeting adjourned.
